

CITROEN DEALERSHIP, DRIFFIELD

A STEADMAN & SON

Building products manufacturer Steadmans has supplied materials from its AS35 insulated steel cladding range for the extension and re-roofing of a Citroen dealership in Driffield, East Yorkshire.

Broach Hill Garage has now completed the improvements, thanks to installer DG Ashley of Aike, near Driffield.

Steadmans supplied a total of 2,700 linear metres of its AS35 80mm roof panels finished in Goosewing Grey and 275 linear metres of AS35 60mm panels in Wedgewood Blue for the walls. The company's 'one stop shop' capability also saw it supply 260 linear metres of FAIR roof lights and 100 linear metres of Goosewing grey flashings and fillers.

Graham Ashley, director at DG Ashley, said: "We have worked with Steadmans for well over five years and will continue to do so. We use Steadmans' products almost every week and on most jobs we do.

"I would have no hesitation in recommending them to other people in the trade, they have been great to us over the years. Not only is the quality of product very high, the standard of their technical support cannot be faulted."

Comprising two outer steel skins with an integral PIR insulation core, Steadmans AS35 insulated panels are available in a wide range of colours and complement the company's broad variety of pre-engineered construction products such as gutters, flashings, rooflights and doors. The company also recently announced the introduction of a new 120mm panel – the thickest available – into the AS35 range.
